

The CAPITAL RESOURCE NETWORK (CRN) welcomes newly relocated professionals and their family to the region through a holistic approach, helping to provide needed information and local connections to alleviate relocation stresses and concerns.

The CRN provides approximately 20 hours of service within a six-month period. We serve as a point of contact for questions, a reference for resources, a connector to business, community and employment networks in the Capital Region.

Increase your productivity and reduce your stress

Even prior to your start date, the CRN professionally and confidentially provides local support that allows you to focus on the new job. The CRN is ideal for seeking solutions and resources to the everyday questions you may have in rebuilding your community as you relocate. From recreational programs, to finding special resources for a loved one, or knowing you are working with a trusted realtor and/or other service providers, the CRN is here for you.

Be a part of your new community

In addition to serving as a safety zone and an ongoing resource for questions, the CRN will share invitations to events and send notices about volunteer and social opportunities.

The CRN also checks-in on a monthly basis, helping to support you and your family to live and work in the Capital Region, allowing you to thrive in your new community in smooth fashion.

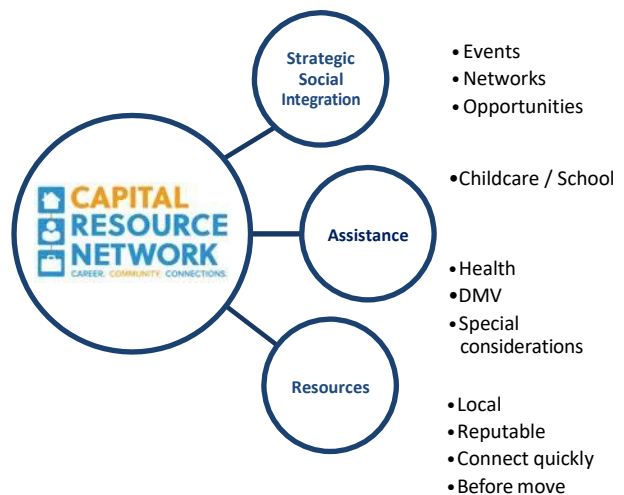

Leverage our network’s dual-career support

A resource to spouses and partners looking for employment, the CRN supports multiple strategies towards networking in the Capital Region. One unique aspect of the program includes coordination of informational meetings. Networking does not guarantee employment; however, it offers access to invaluable job search elements such as advice about the local landscape, questions about future hiring, potential referrals to colleagues, and an essential in-person exchange.
